Automotive Mechatronics Teacher

Background:

The Salesians of Don Bosco were founded in Italy in 1859 and in 1896 first came to Cape Town. In 1910 the first center to care for youth at risk was founded. Serving the needs of the most vulnerable marginalized youth to bring about lasting change in their lives has been the focus of the Salesian Institute Youth projects (SIYP) since then.

As an organization, we are dedicated to serving the needs of vulnerable youth. We focus on building their life skills and capacity through a broad range of customized programs and support them in the employment process. For more information please visit www.salesianyouth.org.za.

The Salesian Institute Youth Projects (SIYP) in partnership with Porsche started a new vocational education program in 2017. We are looking to recruit enthusiastic, technically skilled Teachers who are ready to share their knowledge in general automotive engineering /automotive mechatronics with the next generation of technicians in training. The Teacher will be responsible for preparing students in a wide range of competencies required as automotive service mechatronics technicians.

Responsibilities include:

- Conducting modular teaching lessons according to competency-oriented curriculum of vocational education classes at SIYP;
- Designing and implementing lesson plans including weekly schedules;
- The successful creation and implementation of competency-based learning situations;
- Supporting the students during their life skills program as part of the holistic approach to the youth's personal growth and development;
- Work closely to share learning with other international Teachers and with the premium brand's partners;
- Organizing and delivering excellent classes in a clear, concise manner so that students are successful in learning each training module;
- Supervising and holding students accountable while promoting learning, participation, motivation, and professionalism; testing, evaluating, and communicating performance and progress with students, supervisors, and other departments in a timely and accurate manner;
